I want to be the conduit, to bring the highest quality care and the highest quality delivery of equipment to my clients. I want to be that link between my customers and GE Healthcare and all our resources. My experiences over the years has shaped who I am today and helps drive my passion to positively benefit our Veterans and our service men and women. This is their life that we’re talking about. I take that very seriously.

Background

Passionate about healthcare, Shaun spent a decade in EMS on Advanced Life Support medical units. He transitioned into the medical device industry and has a drive and a desire to bring high-quality care to his community.

A member of a service family, he feels a very personal connection to serving those who’ve served. Shaun’s father is a Purple Heart recipient and a Vietnam Veteran. He has an uncle who is a retired Colonel in the Air Force, a cousin who is a retired Colonel in the Army, a brother who is 10th Mountain Division, and a father-in-law who is a two-time Purple Heart and Bronze Star Recipient. Shaun’s extended service family helps drive his resolve to do what he can to improve healthcare for all active service members and Veterans.

“I know what it’s like to be in the back of an ambulance going 80 miles an hour, trying to save somebody’s life, and the importance of delivering critical care with equipment you can count on.”

Case File – Shaun’s hands-on approach keeps him grounded

Shaun's passion for helping people inspires his day-to-day interactions with clients and keeps him focused on understanding what the client needs. Shaun believes the GE Healthcare Account Community makes a difference. “That’s how we’re successful. I work with an unbelievable group of talented people all talking and all working with the same goal. I’m that conduit bringing all of us together no matter what we’re working on.”

To keep him grounded he keeps a “reality check” board with photos of his time as an EMT, and a handwritten note from a patient whose life he saved. Shaun likes to remind himself of those experiences to inspire his actions every day. It’s taking my experiences into industry, that attitude, and that passion. I can’t have a bad day when I look at that board.”
